

Navigator

The Air Force Reserve vitally needs navigators, especially bomber, mobility, special ops, reconnaissance/surveillance/electronic warfare, generalist and fighter navigators. If you wish to continue your career as a navigator, we invite you to join us.

There's great flexibility in the Air Force Reserve. For instance, this is a part-time job, but you can volunteer for additional missions. You also have the option of pursuing a full-time civilian career while you serve in the Reserve. Your Recruiter will help you evaluate the possibilities.

Benefits

In the Air Force Reserve, you are entitled to a wide range of benefits, similar to those on Active Duty.

- Earn a paycheck – The pay is competitive for part-time and some full-time jobs.
- Get an education – The Air Force Reserve encourages continuing education and offers several programs – Non-contributory Montgomery G.I. Bill, Tuition Assistance, free credits through the Community College of the Air Force (CCAF), and specialized training that can lead to certifications and licenses. There can also be bonuses and incentives for those going into critically needed areas.
- Low-cost health care plan – This new program applies to both the Reservist and immediate family and can significantly reduce the cost of medical care.
- Retirement plan – Military retirement programs are very generous. If you have previously served, your time counts toward your retirement in the Air Force Reserve.
- Commissary and BX Privileges – Military bases offer discounted and tax-free supermarket and department store shopping plus low-cost recreational vehicle rentals.
- Live and serve at home – Serve where you live and transfer to a new location only at your request.
- Maintain rank – If you have previously served in the Air Force or any other branch of the military, chances are you will retain your rank when you join the Air Force Reserve.
- Do the extraordinary – This is an opportunity to meet American heroes accomplishing amazing feats and to become one with them.

It will only take a few minutes of your time to explore this opportunity.
